BLACKSMITH'S AND CARPENTER'S TOOLS, For sale by H. W. CORBETT.

Campaigning in Southeastern Oregon.

[Correspondence of the Owyhee Avalanche.]

CAMP No. 1, July 21st, 1867.

This place is doubtless in Baker County, Oregon, on what is known as Trout Creek, and about eighteen miles south of Camp C. F. Smith—which Post the command left at half past six last evening and pitched the temporary wickiups at half past twelve this A. M. The road traveled was the Chico, up to within a few miles, where we left it to the right and took a cut-off supposed to save five miles. From Camp Smith the road leaves Stein's mountain to the right about twenty-five miles. Stein's Mountain is of the butte character—standing out on the level plain; but in another sense, it is but a higher portion of a long, low chain, extending into Nevada. It supplies the South Fork of the Malheur and is yet spotted with snow. Its timber is scrubby. Camp Smith overlooks the valley of White Horse to the west and south, and along which the road takes its way some distance; but four miles from Smith brings us to Willow Creek. Thence Trout Creek, along which we traveled several miles previous to camping.

As everything was in such a jumble at the Post the little while I was there, and everybody so busy, I failed to connect with any great amount of information, and that was not very correct. I've been taking an inventory of the outfit to-day, and find it composed about as follows: Major Perry, commanding Co. F, 1st Cavalry, forty-five men; Capt. Harris, Co. M, 1st Cavalry, thirty-seven men; Capt. Darrugh, thirty-seven Warm Spring Indians and eleven employes—forty-nine; Capt. McKay, thirty-five Warm Spring Indians and eleven employes—forty-six; and with Archy McIntosh's twenty-five Snake Indians—making about two hundred men mounted. Add to the column two hundred pack animals, and it string along single file to a respectable length; and as it moved off from the Post about sundown, presented a unique appearance—motley rather, with the Indians in as much or little dress as suits their taste, boys in blue and the usual variety of employees. I may add that General Crook commands the expedition; Dr. Wagner is Chief Surgeon and Dr. Tomkins Assistant Surgeon. It may be of the utmost importance to add that the undersigned is in charge of Co. I—I being the only one in the company at this time. Having one of the biggest and toughest horses in the command, I may make an imposing appearance; but am satisfied I am regularly imposing on the good nature of all hands and the cook especially the latter. Such trips as this fetches one to his appetite, but frequently takes one to where there isn't anything else. However, we are going where is abundance of game—and may be, where "game" will be required and found wanting. Speaking of game, this creek is aptly named, and all hands and all colors of hands are feasting on or fishing for trout—the regular brook species. A nice stream and no accommodating one—bubbling up to the lips of the way-worn traveler, accompanying him through the desert as far as it can and then sinks as if tired of the barren prospects about, and as it were, goes in quest of Wild Horse and Willow Creeks gone before. To appreciate the bounties of nature where the bounties are limited, the traveler needs to experience a good sage-brush thirst and then come down on a pure, cool stream when least expecting it; if he don't believe with Tom Moore, when finding flowers on the brink of a volcano—that God has arranged matters pretty well after all, then all I've got to say is, such a creature had better never left his mother.

"Sweetening the very verge of doom,"—

Lieutenants Madigan and Bacon leave Camp Smith to-day for Camp Warner, taking all at Smith except the old garrison of about fifty men in command of Major Walker, who will run the concern satisfactorily and give him but half a chance. The officers aforesaid—also Lieutenant Eskridge, a lively boy and doing considerable business in the A. Q. M. Department—will immediately outfit more men to join the expedition at Warner and swell its numbers to upwards of four hundred effectives. But more of this again, perhaps.

CAMP No. 2, July 22.—This place of rest is undoubtedly in Humboldt county, Nevada, but Oregon may claim it by a mile or two until the surveyors settle it; but I am not caring a cent one way or the other—nor carrying a cent, either—which is the old thing, you know. Came down Trout Creek from six P. M. last evening, until we struck the old stage road station. Passed through some rough canyon, high black walls on either side, resembling columns jostled over to an angle of forty-five degrees and then left to shift for themselves at intervals, reminding one of the front of a paint shop where green and yellow is daubed regardless of expense. However, nature furnishes the originals for every production of art, and we should not find fault with her profusion of colors even if we half suspect the birds contributed a share by way of variety. As my friend Madigan might say, "Nothing in this menagerie, ladies and gentlemen, to shock the modesty of the most fastidious." Leaving Trout Creek, the command continued south on the Chico road, which wind along the foot of the east side of the Pueblo Range—rather an extension of Stein's Mountain. The camp to-day is eighteen miles from that of yesterday, in a canyon about a quarter of a mile west of and at the mouth of which is a deserted village known as Pueblo City. Another interesting illustrations of the naming of towns—as I am told that "Pueblo" means city in the original. However, as it is in ruins and ruined no one but its founders, we should be satisfied. What a pity some other cities of magnificent distances—in the distance—started on imaginary wealth and maintained on promises of equal stability, had not been similarly saved by the gods and died young? I have no doubt it was money in the pockets of the proprietors of Pueblo that they were fools enough to commence life at the mouth of the canyon where one Indian could come down and clean out ten to one any time; they were thus enabled to get acquainted early in business and have something to start elsewhere. This view embraces all of Pueblo Valley—several miles in width and perhaps twenty long—surrounded by low mountains: to better describe it, it looks like a billiard-table stripped of its green—the bed is mostly alkali, but in these mountains there is plenty of slate mixed with quartz, the latter being hard and white, the former lead color and soapstonish. Have seen some specimens that indicate silver, considerable antimony and colored by copper. The Vicksburg mines are further south and on the opposite side of the valley; a few men are at work there and a little machinery pointing that way.

The command thus far has marched leisurely and has some trouble with wild pack mules; but is now getting in shape to come to time. Archy McIntosh was ordered to "the front" this morning, and from this on the expedition may expect forced marches occasionally—be the result something or nothing. McIntosh is no throw-off as many are in the profession he is noting. He was brought up by the Hudson Bay Company, who meant prosperous business all the time. The McKay family (pronounce it McKyo) is represented quite numerously in this District. Donald is with Coppinger as scout, and I understand is trustworthy; and besides the Captain, there is another brother here. The Captain—known also as "Doctor" and "Billy"—is an educated man and one who hath traveled. He is a gentlemanly fellow and sociable, and I like him much. His family name is Scotch, but his complexion correspondents more aptly to the celebrated snuff of that name—all of which he cannot help, and don't know whether he would if he could; for after all, it's about as Billings would say, the best judges of color could not pick out the respective souls of any race in the kingdom of Heaven. McKay's and Barrah's commands are regularly enlisted in the United States service for one year or "the war," which may mean more or less. McIntosh's Snakes are a temporary command so far, but one most likely to continue right along; their leader will so long as Gen. Crook runs the machine and can get him. There is a young buck along who was captured last Winter at the fight on Trara's Plain. He is bright as an antelope, and it is interesting to see some old one put him through a dance and singing operation—a mixture of juba and cayo-le. But what I was going to say, the little devil, during the fight, observed the soldiers making rather a rough but necessary examinations for the purpose of distinguishing the sexes of the enemy; to that the feminines might not be put to the sword—especially at that time. When captured he expected instant death, but with his hands he managed the fig-leaf dodge so successfully that he was spared—more out of admiration for his sagacity than love for Lo the poor Indian. "Nothing in this menagerie, ladies and gentlemen to shock the modesty of the most fastidious." By the way, Capt. McKay is satisfied of the death of Paulina, and that the Snakes over towards John Day are without a leader and have gone south to join Wa-shi-wa-ha, or are badly scattered. Paulina was killed about thirty miles southof the Warm Spring Reservation.

I have been reading the reports of Col. Curry and his under-officers, who traveled over this country two and three years ago as Oregon volunteers. Find considerable to interest just now, as the Colonel deals in the descriptive occasionally. At the Owyhee Ferry, where I found such words as played out, gone in, etc., he employed weird, antiquated, fanciful, and other terms; and positively asserts that those curiously-wrought hills and shores were caused by the wind alone. A close examination thereabouts will disprove his theory and more firmly establish the "Testimony of the Rocks,"—that those strange curiosities in nature were produced by the action of the waves instead of the wind; and that all the Great Basin was once the sea, and that these hieroglyphics—but the marks of old Neptune's trident,—like

"the bards sublime,
Whose distant footsteps echo
Down the corridors of time,"— before he took up his bed and walked to where he could still be in his element. I think, however, that between wind and water, the Colonel and I will strike it somewhere; and as he inclines to wind in other respects—in his report—I'll let him have his way. Out here—from necessity—I incline to water frequently—for drinking purposes, of course; whether I will "take water" in close quarters is quite another thing. "Nothing in this menagerie," etc.

From this camp on I hope to find something to interest you more than a draw on the fancy. It interests me, however, and I don't care so much for your welfare as to worry about it under such circumstances. I find some droll old characters among the soldiers—most of whom have seen service—of some kind or other. One old scad I met at the Ferry was a remarkable man as he told it. I traced his life and adventures—through his conversation—down through all the wars since the battle of the Boyne to the last fight near Stein's Mountain; and a rough estimate would require forty cords of wood and other materials to replace his sacrifices of limbs, head, etc. Science tells us that a human being undergoes an entire change of material once every seven years, in the ordinary course of life; just think of my hero, then! I gave him a glass of whisky, showed him the side of a bale of hay and started for Camp Smith, but on the way, at a certain place on the road, I experienced a dose of rough living that set me—to thinking of "what is home without a mother." The living was better than the sleeping. I come out on this trip to get revived up and expected and preferred something active. The adobe abode was about the size of an old fashioned bake-oven and looked so much like one that if I could have gone to sleep there would have been no trouble about dreaming of the "days of my boyhood," &c.; however, as to the matter of health, I was not in bed one two seconds by the watch—I was on the night watch and by moonlight I could see anything, no matter how large—until I could feel new life (new to me) coming upon me from every point of the compass, and it occurred to me that if this expedition should all get killed but one, and that one was me—it would come back with a million more lives than it started with. But I am happy since getting to Camp Smith all right.

HALF-PAST EIGHT, P. M.—Two Indians have just arrived with a note from McIntosh in which he states that he struck the trail of four Indians early this morning, followed them nearly all day, caught and killed them. The messengers brought in a bow and quiver of arrows, and seemed highly elated. The affair took place west of this point about twelve miles, and is important from the fact of their not getting away with any information.

GENERAL GRANT ON SHERIDAN.—Wilkes' Spirit says:

In the course of a visit to Washington the past week we had the pleasure of hearing a speech made by General Grant, which we think should be given to the country. During the period of the rebellion it was our advantage to enjoy a personal intimacy of some of the most prominent members of the Government, and we have always made it a point never to repeat any of the expressions elicited during such intercourse in the columns of this paper. There are exceptions, however, even to the strictest rules; and we propose now to make such an exception in relation to General Grant, not because usually he says very little, and therefore the public are anxious for his opinions, but because the matter we have to state is so very worthy of him, so just to Sheridan, and for both these reasons so useful to the country, that we do not think it ought to be withheld. General Grant, on the occasion we refer to, had introduced to three persons who were present the subject of General Sheridan's late dispatch in relation to the Attorney General's opinions, and, with the view of justifying its style, explained that it was in the nature of a personal dispatch to him (not intended as an official response to that opinion), and consequently not meant for publication. "Nevertheless," said the General, "I read a copy of it in the newspaper before I received the original, and I am curious to learn how such a result could have come about." The General then went on to say that Sheridan's dispatch was almost in the nature of a confidential communication, and that it was characterized by an easy frankness, which was a leading feature of Sheridan's character. He was, consequently, sorry to see that the papers were making such a noise about it, but attributed this fierceness of the attack in Louisiana to the fact that Sheridan was not in any of the "rings" down there and that they consequently hated him heartily, and therefore fell upon him all together. Warming with his subject, General Grant further remarked that "the public did not thoroughly understand Sheridan. He had popularity enough, it is true; in fact, all that a man could desire, but no appreciation. He was a much broader man than was generally supposed. He was usually regarded as a brave, off-hand, down-right fighter, with not much cultivation; but he was in reality a man of fine judgment and fully capable of handling, under any circumstances

False Colors.

The organ of that small portion of the Democratic party of Oregon which deems it proper to stifle its opinions for the sake of expediency, at last as good as confesses that it believes in sailing under false colors as a decoy to catch the loss knowing ones among its opponents. To conceal the real aims and tendencies of its party and to pretend that they are something very different from what they really are, it thinks is perfectly legitimate, and nothing more than the "exercise of practical common sense." This is the sort of warfare that suits a buccaneer, but it is hardly the correct principle for one who assumes the office of a public instructor, who claims to be very fair and open in all transactions, and who has wasted reams of paper in denouncing political opponents for carrying measures by alleged fraudulent means. It is now virtually admitted that the proceedings had at a recent Democratic Convention in this State were designed expressly for the purposes of deception. It was thought vital to the future success of the party to keep its real objects out of view, and to cloak its actual designs under colors that might attract rather than repel. Do mockery was to be sugared over so that it might be unsuspectingly swallowed, and after the next election the party, if successful, could reassert its old principles and claim a victory on the basis of State rights and repudiation of the national debt. All this is now substantially confessed, and our first statements in regard to the matter are therefore fully verified.

In referring to the fact that it is a common thing among the managers of the Democratic party to suppress the real aims of their organization, we have had no expectation of being able to "sow dissensions" in that party. No one who knows anything of the rigid discipline and the blind, unreasoning, servile submission of that party to the behests of its leaders, will attempt such an impossibility. Our only object is to show that when the Democratic party pretends to moderation de design is to deceive. We want everybody to remember that it has not changed its nature, no matter how plausible it may seem, and that every resolution it makes of old heresies and odious doctrines, is only a repetition of the strategy of the prince of evil, who has often quoted Scripture to his purposes.

No one can have failed to notice the regular system of cajolery which this party is employing to allure weak members of the opposite party to its support. If any Unionist or Republican shows the least indecision or weakness, or even a [illegible] that gives encouragement of a hope of his [illegible] from his party, he is at once plied with [illegible] and becomes the object of continual [illegible] and flatteries. On the other hand it is abominable that those of our men are railed at with such intensity as those who have quit that party [illegible] of its disloyalty and the general badness of its principles. There are encomiums for the one class and vituperation and curses for the other.

The bold attempts of this party to disguise its principles and thereby allure them to its support, will be of little avail. The people have relaxed [illegible] of their vigilance. The manipulations [illegible] in local politics may effect apparent [illegible] ults, but they will prove unimportant. Of [illegible] are perfectly assured, that there is now a [illegible] great, not of a Republican majority in the [illegible], than there was before the last election. The [illegible] cratic vote next year will fall below the [illegible] it was had in June, 1866. The reports [illegible] the several counties render that fact certain.

Arrests in Elections

[illegible] Rotary Secretary made a speech in Boston on the [illegible] ction of his late visit there in the course of which he remarked that we American citizens have got to learn the simple habit of acquiescing in the choice that we ourselves make of our [illegible] for four years. This considered in other times, might be regarded as a vicious thrust at the party to which the Secretary and his man [illegible] been looking for support during the last two years, as that party is noted only for the only [illegible] has ever of [illegible] to acquiescence in the re[illegible]'s Presidential election. But his remark [illegible] better put had it been made [illegible] in State or in one of the strongholds [illegible] Northern Democracy. The people of the [illegible] never a majority of them have always acquiesced in the [illegible] ions of the ballot box. That is a "habit" to which they have always been accustomed, and which they are therefore under no necessity of learning. It is to be hoped, however, that events of the last few years have taught others this much needed lesson. All our [illegible] have proceeded from the refusal of a political party to acquiesce in the choice made in the election of 1860. There have been twenty Presidential elections, which in a large majority of instances have gone against the party opposed to the Democracy yet the Democratic party, or the Southern portion of it, made the first and only armed opposition to the result which the country has ever witnessed. Secretary Seward was right in attaching so much importance to the point to which he alluded, and if his audience had been composed of those who needed the rebuke, it would have quite a passe. But it is probable that the party which has once refused to acquiesce in the choice of a majority will hardly do so again. The lessons it has learned was too well administered to be quickly forgotten.

Advices from Steilacoom state that Frank Clark, the defeated candidate for Congress, contemplates leaving the Orphan Asylum at that place and [illegible] either at Portland or Vancouver.

[illegible] for the Assembly.—A friend of ours has [illegible] a letter from Charles Worthington, formerly of this city, from which it appears that he is running on the Union ticket at Eureka, Humboldt Bay, for the Assembly.

STATE NEWS.

A letter from Jefferson, Marion county, informs us that the grain in that vicinity is nearly all harvested. The crops are not quite an average. The hay crop is very light.

A phenomenon which is spoken of as unusual was observed in the Clackamas river a few mornings since. The water [illegible] clay appearance and had a brackish taste. It became entirely perfectly clear again.

We have been favored with a copy of the minutes of the annual meeting of the Congregational Association of Oregon, which was held at Oregon City in the latter part of the month of June. From the statistical table we gather a report of the condition of the several Churches. They are eight in number, and are located as follows: At Albany, Amity, Dallas, Forest Grove, Hillsboro, Oregon City, Portland and Salem. The oldest is that at Oregon City which was organized in 1844. The number of members connected with the several Churches is 405. Additions during the past year, 109. Removals by death and letter, 19.

Endorsement of Gen. Sheridan.

The Ohio Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, at its late semi-annual meeting, passed the following

Resolved, That the members of the Grand Army of the Republic of the Department of Ohio, now in session assembled at Columbus, having fought for the suppression of the rebellion, and for maintaining the unity and integrity of our Republic, and having watched with intense solicitude the [illegible] trials to which Major General P. H. Sheridan has been subjected as a soldier and commander, while laboring for the reorganization of the elements in his Department, which are controlled by passions and prejudices engendered by the war, extend to him our unqualified endorsement of every order he has issued, our congratulations on the tenacity and courage he has displayed, and commend him that we are in line determined to sustain him, as we will sustain all patriots in the glorious work of reconstruction, and that armed with the ballot, we will labor for the success of the plan of reconstruction adopted by Congress while peace is an unrepentant rebel in the field to oppose us.

A DEAD-LOCK.—Yesterday morning, being the tenth day after the election of Mr Rosenheim to the office of Marshal, he went to the Council Chamber and demanded of Mr Hoyt the possession of the books, papers keys, etc Mr. Hoyt responded that he was the legal Marshal of the city, and that Mr Rosenheim not having been legally elected, he declined to yield possession Recorder Hoffman said, that under the circumstances he would not recognize any man as Marshal, until he could take the matter under advisement, and that he would hear and determine the matter this morning at ten o'clock Meantime, it was understood that neither Mr. Hoyt nor Mr. Rosenheim, nor neither of their deputies, would exercise the functions of their offices till the decision of the Recorder this morning No order was formally made to this effect; we understood it to be a verbal direction to the contestants and their deputies Constables Bull and Hudson, being officers under the State law, were designated to serve processes issued out of the court A great deal of excitement grew out of these proceedings and the personal friends of each party had the matter under heated discussion during a great part of the day Mr Hoyt informed Mr Rosenheim that he should hold the office until dispossessed by competent judicial authority Mr Rosenheim, in reply, said he was legally elected to the office and he wanted it, without resort to legal proceedings We heard it stated during the afternoon that Mr. Rosenheim was having papers drawn up to bring the matter before Judge Shattuck; but we could learn nothing certain about it During the day, Mayor Chapman went to Mr Hoyt and formally demanded possession of the keys, books, etc of the Marshal's office and the city jail; to which Mr. Hoyt replied as to Mr. Rosenheim's demand This contest, and the action of the Recorder, practically suspended the city police, with the exception of such as are constables, for one day.

UP PROF. WHITNEY ASCEND MT HOOD!—The Alta California's item in relation to the ascent and barometrical measurement of Mt. Hood and the report of the mountain's height, is going the rounds of the California papers The item is to the effect that, Prof Whitney had lately returned to California reporting officially, as a member of the State Geological Corps, that he had ascended Mt Hood, had taken careful barometrical observations and found that the mountain's height does not exceed 12,400 We have little hesitation in saying that Prof Whitney did not ascend Mt. Hood at all. He certainly had not returned to California and reported, etc., at the time of the Alta's item. He was in this city the other day when we published the Alta's item, and did not return to California till the Dramme sailed Monday evening. A few days since he informed a gentleman of this city with whom he was conversing about Mt. Hood that, he had when some imperfect triangulations, but did not state the height of the mountain, thus ascertained. The party who returned to this city Monday evening from the summit, say that they found no remains of camp fires anywhere, and after ascending a few thousand feet, they found not a track or a sign to indicate that a human foot had trod the snows this year, previous to their ascent. The truth probably is, Prof. Whitney has not reported that he ascended Mt. Hood or that he took any accurate measurement of its height, or if he did so, his report was informal and as unreliable as it was unprofessional.

THE BARK "RIVAL"—The bark Rival from San Francisco, was towed up to the dock yesterday morning by the steamer Ranger. The bark left San Francisco July 17th, and was sixteen days out, crossing the bar on the 17th inst. During the entire passage she experienced northwesterly winds. For six days continuously the wind came from the N.N.W, without changing a single point. She brings freight as follows: To J. R. Robbins & Co [illegible]rson, Knapp, Burrell & Co. 229, L May 100, Smith & Davis 317, unknown B. B. P. in diamond, 2, W. C. K. W. in diamond & Co., care J. & H. Umatilla, 20, Underhill & Co. 197, Friedman & Co. 3,128, Allen & Lewis 82, Millard & VanSchuyver 50, Hodge & Calef's, unknown 276, E. J. Northrup & Co. 25, unknown C. & G. (Cummings & Grant) 80, Capt Blain 500, Galland, Goodman & Co. 92, Wm Yancey 4, M. Seller 200, no mark 424, Rev. H. O. Benson. 9.

THE LAW RELATING TO EMPTY LIQUOR CASKS.—The following is the section of the amended revenue law of March, 1867, relating to the obliteration of brands upon empty liquor casks:

Sec. 22. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of every person who empties or draws off, or causes to be emptied or drawn off, distilled spirits or other articles subject by law to tax, from a cork, barrel or package, bearing any of the marks or brands required by law, or marks intended for, or purporting to be, or designed to have the effect of such marks, immediately upon such cork, barrel or package being emptied, to efface and obliterate said marks or brand; and any person who shall violate this provision shall be liable to a penalty of ten dollars for each offence; and any such cask, barrel or package from which said marks are not so effaced and obliterated as herein required, shall be liable to forfeiture, and may be seized by any officer of Internal Revenue wherever found.

SUIT AGAINST THE MILITARY AUTHORITIES.—The Register says: A private letter to us gives the rumor, that Squire Bl—tt, of St. Helens, who was arrested by military authority in 1855, for openly rejoicing over the election of President Lincoln, has commenced an action to recover $10,000 damages from Colonel Steary, then commanding the District of Oregon, and a number of citizens, including a very intimate acquaintance of the editor of this paper, who, as it is alleged, aided and abetted the aforesaid Colonel Steary in procuring the arrest and imprisonment of the plaintiff. We are informed that the ambitious and enterprising firm of young lawyers in Portland have undertaken the job of collecting the ten thousand dollars damages "on shares."

OREGON HARNESS AND SKIRTING LEATHER.—Our notice has been called to an excellent article of Oregon tanned harness and skirting leather, manufactured at Milwaukie, by Mr. T. Armstrong. Experienced workers in leather, after thorough examination and test of this leather, pronounce it equal to the famous Santa Cruz leather. It is firm, strong, and at the same time, pliable, three very essential qualities in harness leather. Our Oregon tanned article has, for several years, had a very good reputation, and such samples as may be seen at Mr J. B. Congle's shop in this city, must serve to lead it still higher in the estimation of the trade. Mr. Armstrong, we understand, is prepared to fill extensive orders for all kinds of leather.

LOST FOUR HUNDRED DOLLARS.—A gentleman who went down to Oregon City yesterday morning on board the Senator, lost a purse containing $400, under the following circumstances: While waiting for the Senator to start, he entered a little out-house adjoining the wharf and laying the purse down on the bench, went away forgetting it. Arriving at Oregon City, he telegraphed to a friend to go down and get it; but when the purse were searched the purse was gone. The outhouse belonged to a Chinese house, and being used by no one else, it is thought that some of the Chinamen found the purse and concealed it, though they all disclaimed any knowledge respecting it

VANCOUVER ITEMS.—We learn from the Register that at the last meeting of the Common Council, H. B. Wood was elected City Auditor.....A couple of soldiers bent on a raid to raise the wind, broke into the Adjutant General's office at this post last week and stole a fine carpet from the floor of the office. The act was a very risky one as the building is adjacent to the quarters, and an armed sentinel is kept day and night in front of the premises The thieves concealed the carpet in brush, where it was discovered the next day by Marshal Brady. The thieves are suitably lodged in the guard house, where, for the present, they will remain, like Micawber," "waiting for something to turn up."

RECORDER'S COURT.—The following proceedings were had in the Recorder's Court yesterday:

J. Kinsig and John Doe, charged with throwing stones at a China house, were discharged.

State vs. Doets, larceny; continued till this morning.

State vs. Hee Choy and Pong Go; keeping a bawdy house; continued till this morning

Zotence Quinn, charged with larceny of a boat belonging to A. M Lorycz; continued till this morning.

PERSONAL.—Capt T. J. Eckerson and family have become residents, for the time being, of this city, while the Captain is awaiting orders.

Rev. J. G Raynor, Chaplain the U. S. Army, has been in this city for a day or two. His post at present is Fort Stanborn; but an order has been issued assigning him to duty at Fort Grant, Arizona, to which place he will remove with his family in a short time.

CURIOUS DEPOSITS.—Mr. C. W. Burrage who came up, Saturday, from the Victor Salt Works, brought up several specimens of shell and sedimentary deposits, uncovered in some of the excavations about the works He thinks them marine deposits The shells have some of the appearance of boiling marine, but there are others which have their counterparts in fresh water. The specimens will be subjected to tests to determine their origin.

ONGOING HOME.—From a letter shown us, we learn that W. H. Payne, Grand Worthy Chief Templar of the Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T. of Oregon and Washington Territory, was to sail from New York for home, on the 1st of August. He had been sick, but at the time of writing was recovering. The Grand Lodge will have its next annual session in Portland, commencing on the 10th of September.

GOOD TROUTING.—Charley Ridgeway, hotel runner for the Exchange, and another one of the boys, went up to Johnson's creek, yesterday, trouting, and returned in the afternoon with eighty-five fine fellows which in the aggregate weighed twenty-five pounds. We call that pretty fair.

A HEAVY TOW.—The Ranger yesterday morning towed up the bark Rival and the heavy barge, Baker, belonging to Mr. Abernathy, of Oak Point The bark had over 400 tons of freight, and the barge was loaded heavily with lumber for the Quartermaster's Department, at Ft Vancouver.

Business in San Francisco.

The following is from the Sacramento Union's commercial report, dated San Francisco, August 1st

Business in nearly every department has been exceedingly active during the past week, The orders from the interior come so thick and fast that the means for conveying the goods to their destination are inadequate for that purpose Complaints are made of delays at Marysville, Stockton and other points at the head of river navigation, that teams are not to be had for "love nor money."

The accumulation of capital here is becoming quite a serious subject to financiers. The published statements of the deposits in the local savings banks show that in July last they had $1,109,508 cash in hand, unemployed. This proves that there is more money here than is wanted at the current rate of interest, because these societies, depending for income on the rest of deposits, never permit them to lie idle when they can be employed. As an illustration of the extent of the accumulation in these institutions, I give the returns of four of the principal for the present year:

	1866	1867.
San Francisco Savings Union	60,638	$109,644
Savings and Loan Society	100,000	200,000
French Savings and Loan....	97,172	155,561
Hibernian Savings and Loan	267,170	618,436
	$530,990	$1,064,39

These institutions are the best financial barometers in the world, because, being the reservoirs for the funds of persons not in business, they are peculiarly sensitive. There is no good reason why money should be dearer here than anywhere else. This accumulation of idle capital is no benefit to any one, while many important interests in the State are languishing for means to develop them. Our San Francisco capital must find vent through the interior. There is no outlet for it in Europe or the Atlantic States, because money, both paper and gold, is in excess of the demand there. Another year's accumulation, with a bountenus harvest and increasing yield of the mines, must bring down interest, or ruin some of the saving societies; for there is quite as much danger to these institutions from a surfeit as from famine. I have gone to some length in explaining this matter, because it has an important bearing on the manufacturing and general business of the State. If money were as cheap here as elsewhere, it would place our manufacturers and business men nearer on a level with their competitors, who enjoy the advantage of cheap labor.

PERFECTLY EREMPTORING.—Such were our feelings as we stopped into the Music and Art Gallery of W. T. SHANAHAN, on First street, a few days since, and listened to the delightful tones and harmony which came from one of Mason & Hamlin's Cabinet Organs. From the soft breathing flute tones to the thundering bass of the pipe organ, all was equally free and sweet. And why is it that makers cannot produce instruments like these? Messrs Mason & Hamlin were the first to introduce the Cabinet Organ, and have gained such world-wide notoriety that it requires the work of two large factories to supply the demand for these valuable instruments.

Gov. Woods, in his Siskiyou county speech, took up the Civil Rights, Freedmen's Bureau, and Reconstruction Acts of Congress, explaining them so clearly that it carries conviction to the hearts of all thinking men, that Barman Bros. sell fine Clothing 30 per cent. less than any other store in their line, and not hard to prove it, by calling on them on the corner of Front and Morrison streets (formerly City of Paris Store), Portland. Ten dozen India Rubber Neck Ties left yet and are offered for sale at 50 cents each.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF IDAHO—BOISE CITY, I. T.—Organized March 11th, 1867, (with circulation) under Act of Congress, approved June 30, 1864. Authorized capital $500,000. Paid up capital, $100,000. B. M. DuBoll, President. C. W. Moore, Cashier. The Answer.

She spoke not; and a dizzy faintness grew
And chilled my doubting brain.
When all at once her silent answer flew
Through every startled vein.

As, when at morn, the first faint crimson streak
Illumes the pallid sky,
I saw the fire of love steal up her cheek,
And light her downcast eye.

Heart answered heart, I felt the living flame
My own pale features flush,
What need that trembling lips the word should frame?
I read it in her blush

Sunday Column.

"You talk of the prosperity of your city. I know but one true prosperity. Does the human soul grow and prosper here? Do not point me to your thronged streets. I ask who throng them? It is a low-minded, self seeking, god-worshiping, man-despising crowd, which I see rushing through them. Do I meet in them under the female form the gaily-decked prostitute, or the idle, wasteful woman of fashion? Do I meet the young man, showing off his pretty person as the perfection of nature's works, wasting his golden hours in dissipation and sloth, and bearing in his countenance and gaze the mark of a profligate? Do I meet a grasping multitude, seeking to thrive by concealment and fraud? An anxious multitude, driven by fear of want to doubtful means of gain? An unfeeling multitude, caring nothing for others if they may themselves prosper or enjoy? In the neighborhood of your comfortable or splendid dwellings, are the abodes of squalid misery, or ferocious crime, or bestial intemperance, of half unclothed children, of profaneness, dissoluteness, of temptation for thoughtless youth? And are these multiplying with your prosperity, and outstripping and neutralizing the influence of truth and virtue? Then your prosperity is a vain show. Its true use is to make better people.

The glory and happiness of a city consists not in the number, but the character of the population. Of all the fine arts in a city, the grandest is the art of forming the noble specimens of humanity. The costliest productions of our manufactures are cheap compared with a good and wise human being. A city which should practically adopt the principle that man is worth more than wealth or show, would place it the head of the cities. A city, in which men should be trained worthy of the name, would become the metropolis of the earth."—Dr. Channing.

CENTRAL TURKEY.

A letter from Dr. Pratt, of Marash, to a missionary friend now in the United States, dated March 27th, states that the "good work" at Marash "has not yet passed away." "Meetings are interesting, audience large, and twenty-six have now been proposed for admission to the first church, besides twenty-nine in January." There is also a remarkable friendly state of feeling on the part of the old Armenians towards the Protestants and the missionaries.

Mr. Schneider wrote from Aintab, April 4th: "The Eastern question, as it is called, is occupying all minds, more or less, in this region, and, I suppose in all the Empire. The minds of the Turks are considerably excited, and the nominal Christians are filled with some anxiety. I do not mention this to excite alarm; but I think special prayer should be offered, that whatever changes may come over this land may prove to be promotive of the cause of Christ. The Turkish Government is in a very weak and critical condition; the finances are in a most wretched state; taxes are enormous, and trade and business are prostrate. How things can long go on this way it is difficult to see. But God reigns; and this is our consolation."

SOUTH CHINA.

A Friend in China" has very generously purchased a building on the Main street in Peking, to be used as a chapel by the missionaries of the Board. It is adjacent to the mission premises. Writing from Peking, February 4, Mr. Blodget says: "On Sunday last I baptised a young Manchow scholar, whose surname is Kib. He first heard the gospel a year or more before this time. Last evening, at a monthly concert, Mr. Wylie, the agent of the British and Foreign Bible Society, was present with us, having reached Peking by an overland journey from Nankin. In his tours for the sale of Bibles, he has visited almost every open port, and traveled very extensively in the interior. His testimony confirms the statement so often made, that except in those parts where political disturbances exist, China is everywhere open to missionary labor. He has sold many tens of thousands of copies of the New Testament, and is still engaged in this work. It is a happy circumstance and one which should occasion joyful gratitude to God, that the first book heathen Chinese receive from the Christian nations in the West is the Bible." In another letter he writes: "Our new chapel was opened November 29th, and there has been daily preaching in it since that time. The audiences are large, varying from one hundred to two hundred persons; at least ten times the number for whom our smaller chapel on the premises was designed."

EARLY SERVICES ON SUNDAY.

Some of the churches in England are trying an experiment which may be worthy of consideration in this country. It is that of early morning service on the Sabbath during the summer months, and the results are said to be highly encouraging. By commencing divine service at 9 o'clock, instead of 12 or three as many people who do not care to attend during the heat of the day; and it is found that the fatigue of the earliest hour is conducive not only to attentive hearing, but to more animated preaching—two most desirable things to be obtained. There is certainly nothing sacred in the hours almost universally observed, and for that reason perhaps difficult to change. The experiment might be tried, and if it was found to be impracticable, there could be no difficulty in going back to the old hours. What is to be guarded against in such matters is a superstitious regard for old practices, as well as too great eagerness to make changes. Everything which pertains to externals merely, in religious services, should be decided by practical common sense. If any of our churches find that they can secure a larger and more attractive audience by holding their morning service a little earlier during the summer season, they should make the change without hesitation, and without regard to the practice of other churches.—Examiner.

WEEKLY REVIEW.

PORTLAND, FRIDAY, 2 P. M., Aug. 9, 1867.

Our latest quotation of gold is under date, New York, 6th, when it was 140½ in the morning, and leading at ⅜ per cent. per day. There was a scarcity in the market as compared with paper currency

Legal Tenders in San Francisco on the 6th, were in moderate demand at 72 cents buying, and 72½ cents selling.

The interruption of the overland telegraph lines by hostile Indians, has prevented the transmission of eastern news for several days, and the consequence is, dealers on this coast are unable to proceed with any certain reference to the state of the eastern markets This has given rise to great caution, especially as to operations in breadstuffs, and a decline in prices We quote this week, a falling off in the figures of all leading brands, from 25 to 50 cents per bbl

In the general range of jobbing prices there are few changes to note. Java Coffee is ¼ cent and 1 cent higher. Liverpool Salt may now be had for $15. Salmon has been for several days, selling at figures materially under our last week's quotations The demand is light Hardware is very quiet without change. There is still a great scarcity of hams and prices are well sustained. The range is from 15 cent to 18 cents, choice, selling readily at 17 cents and extra choice at 18 cents. We have advices that the San Francisco market is as bare as ours and that small lots have been disposed of at 22 cents There is also a demand for good qualities of both hams and sides, for the mining regions. The prospects, therefore, for working off the surplus of the country at remunerative prices, is encouraging.

The operations of the week, in produce have been rather less than those of last week which is explained by the fact that no vessel has sailed hence, since last Monday Orders from Eastern Oregon and Idaho are steadily increasing and there is a better feeling in regard to the prospective fall trade in that direction. The arrival, this morning, of the bark Rival from San Francisco, adds to the stock of general merchandize about four hundred tons
